
CAREGIVER CONNECTIONS

AN EDUCATIONAL WEBINAR SERIES

The Role of the Speech-Language Pathologist in Dementia

Thursday, November 30th at 10:30 AM EST

Liz Brown is a senior clinician in the department of speech language pathology at Duke and will present on the role that speech therapy has on dementia. This presentation will focus on communication and swallowing changes in dementia, evidence-based interventions for communication, cognition and swallowing, and strategies for interacting with a person living with dementia.

Liz Brown, M.S., CCC-SLP

Liz Brown is a speech-language pathologist in the acute care and inpatient rehabilitation setting at Duke Regional Hospital. Her interests include patient-centered care for acutely hospitalized persons living with dementia. Liz loves teaching and collaborating with patient family members on ways to support their loved ones with dementia through swallowing and cognitive-communication evaluations and treatment.
