This presentation is aimed at helping caregivers better understand the differences between hospice and palliative care and how each can support their loved one with dementia. Symptoms that are common in advanced dementia and treatment options are reviewed, and a patient case highlights the complexities of decision making in advanced dementia.

Sarah Lipscomb, MSN, AGNP-C, RN

Sarah Lipscomb is a palliative care nurse practitioner with expertise in cancer and liver transplant. She studied nursing in 2010 and found her true calling while working as a hospice nurse at Duke's inpatient hospice unit. She completed her nurse practitioner degree at UNC Chapel Hill in 2019 and initially served vulnerable homebound patients through the Just for Us program. She joined Duke palliative care in 2021 as a full-time ambulatory nurse practitioner. Sarah is the Director of Palliative Care at Duke Cancer Center North Durham.
